After completing the takeover of Chelsea last May, c o-controlling owners Todd Boehly and Clearlake Capital wanted to make a splash&# 128077; in the transfer market, partly to show fans their level of ambition but also to signal they would be as👍 aggressive as former owner Roman Abramo vich was in pursuing top talent.
Acting as interim sporting director amid wholesale changes at executive 👍 level, Boehly met with a large number of agents and clubs as he devise d a strategy which would eventually lead👍 the club spending over <600 mi llion to sign 17 players. Perhaps "strategy" is too generous a word to use. It👍 has felt haphazard, scattergun and chaotic at times, almost fr om the beginning when relations quickly became strained between Boehly andԀ 77; the head coach he inherited, Thomas Tuchel.

Sources have told ESPN that after meeting👍 with agent Jorge Men des last summer, Boehly became fixated with the idea of bringing a 37-year-old C ristiano Ronaldo to Chelsea👍 from Manchester United. The idea was presen ted to Tuchel, who rejected it on the basis of Ronaldo's age and that㈇ 7; the Portugal international's inability or reluctance to press was at odds with the profile of striker he preferred. But that👍 was not the end of the matter. Boehly raised the possibility of signing Ronaldo on several further occasions, much to👍 Tuchel's mounting frustration.
